

Tom Daschle Comments in Yahoo! News on Potential Impact of Supreme Court's Ruling on Health Care Subsidies

A Supreme Court ruling could change health insurance for millions of people covered by President Barack Obama's health care law. If the court invalidates subsidies under the law, an estimated 8 million people could lose coverage. In this Yahoo! News article, Tom Daschle explains that, if subsidies are invalidated, the law's requirement to carry insurance would probably become the biggest target for repeal.

"My guess is there would be overwhelming political support for the elimination of the individual mandate if people can't afford the premiums," said former Senator Daschle.
