Donna Glover assists clients with matters relating to day-to-day management issues, minimizing exposure, charges of discrimination and wage complaints, and various employment-related litigation.

Ms. Glover has a broad employment law and litigation practice and represents a wide variety of clients, including construction, property management, scientific and technology solution companies, and not-for-profit organizations. She advises clients on day-to-day management issues relating to employees, advises clients in a way that minimizes exposure, defends them against charges of discrimination and wage complaints filed with the federal, state, and local agencies, and handles various employment-related litigation matters.

As a part of her proactive approach with clients, she identifies training needs and designs and facilitates training for managers and employees on various topics, such as workplace civility, and nondiscrimination, wage and hour compliance, how to handle workplace investigations, federal, state, and local employment law developments, as well as ADA and FMLA compliance.

As a litigator, Ms. Glover represents employers before federal, state, and local administrative agencies; defends employers in federal and state courts; investigates and responds to demand letters; and assists clients with investigating and responding to internal complaints. She routinely drafts, reviews, and provides counsel on various documents governing the employer-employee relationship, including handbooks, employment agreements, separation agreements, settlement agreements, and other employment-related contracts.

Ms. Glover brings invaluable client-side experience to her practice. Prior to practicing law, she held human resources and management positions in the retail, wholesale, and advertising and marketing industries. She is also a Certified Employee Benefit Specialist (CEBS).

Representative Matters

- Defended a large regional bank in an FLSA collective action brought by former employees alleging improper payment of wages and overtime, resulting in a favorable settlement for the client to avoid litigation costs.
- Defended a large, local restaurant in a "reverse" religious discrimination lawsuit brought by a former employee, resulting in the dismissal of all claims but one, which was favorably settled on behalf of the employer.
- Defended a local bank in a Sarbanes-Oxley whistleblower complaint, resulting in dismissal by federal OSHA, and handled the post-dismissal appeal and administrative hearing.
- Defended a large non-profit organization in a class claim of pay discrimination and retaliation brought by two former employees who alleged Title VII and Equal Pay Act violations. Achieved a favorable result for the client during the EEOC conciliation process.
- Defended a large law firm in a lawsuit brought by a former employee alleging wage and hour violations. Reached a favorable settlement for the client to avoid litigation costs.
- Filed a lawsuit against a former employee of a large financial institution for misappropriation of confidential company documents, alleging violations of the Computer Abuse and Fraud Act, the Stored Communications Act, breach of contract for violations of a non-disclosure agreement, and declaratory judgment with respect to the reason for termination.

- Defended a large property management company in a lawsuit brought by a former employee alleging national origin discrimination and retaliation. After discovering that plaintiff had forged documents she submitted in discovery, reached a settlement in the case for a nominal amount.
- Defended a property management company in a lawsuit brought by a former employee alleging sexual harassment and sex stereotyping. Secured dismissal of the case by a federal court after discovering that the plaintiff had submitted fraudulent documents as a part of her responses to discovery.
- Defended a technology company and one of its employees against a lawsuit brought by the employee's former employer alleging breach of a non-competition agreement and related claims against the technology company. During the discovery phase of the case, secured a favorable voluntary dismissal of the complaint with prejudice.
- Defended a large physical therapy provider and one of its managers in a lawsuit filed by a former employee alleging, among other claims, violations of Section 1981. Secured dismissal at the federal district court level and, after the employee appealed to the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, secured the win on appeal.
