

Kelly L. Hagy

Associate

Memphis | 901.577.8262 | khagy@bakerdonelson.com

Kelly Hagy represents clients in commercial and business litigation.

Kelly Hagy is a member of Baker Donelson's Advocacy Department, where she focuses her practice on commercial and business litigation. Ms. Hagy has legal experience representing clients in matters involving land use, contract disputes, bankruptcy (creditor), health care liability, and personal injury litigation.

Prior to joining Baker Donelson, Ms. Hagy served as Assistant County Attorney in Memphis, Tennessee, where she researched complex legal issues and prepared pleadings, motions and briefs for federal and state trial practice and advised various Shelby County government boards. She also engaged clients and opposing counsel to negotiate and settle cases.

While in law school, Ms. Hagy worked at the University of Memphis Housing Adjudication Clinic as a student administrative law judge. She also interned at the Shelby County District Attorney General's Office.

Professional Honors & Activities

- Member – Association for Women Attorneys
- Member – Memphis Bar Association
- Former Board Member – Association for Women Attorneys

Education

- The University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, J.D., 2017
- King University, B.S., 2014
- University of Tennessee, B.A., 2007

Admissions

- Tennessee, 2018
- U.S. District Court and Bankruptcy Court for the District of Western Tennessee