Knowledge Management and Technology

At Baker Donelson, technology equals efficiency, which means more cost savings for our clients. Our knowledge management and technology resources have been tested and refined for two decades.

We offer clients a wide range of customized web-based tools and applications that promote collaboration, efficiency, and cutting-edge legal support. Our extensive menu of online resources includes:

Forms and Precedents. Baker Donelson has tagged more than 600,000 precedents, forms, document assembly packages, and practice-specific materials by type of matter and legal area. All of these resources are shared through the Firm's industry-leading intranet system, BakerNet, and used to educate our lawyers. In addition, all forms, document assembly, and practice materials can be shared with our clients, local counsel, or others as they have been stripped of all client-specific information. We can provide this information through a secure portal environment with a search feature to help users take advantage of the information to increase productivity and reduce time spent on any task.

Online Collaboration Sites. We offer clients a variety of advanced extranet sites for collaboration. Clients can choose from over ten different types of secure extranets, including litigation case extranets, LPM matter sites, eDiscovery data-mapping and legal hold tracking, expert reporter, vendor tracking, corporate deal rooms, due diligence rooms, and immigration extranets. These sites allow users to securely share documents online and can be customized to include task management, calendaring, document review, databases, expert systems, DocBuilder, reporting, and more. With more than 15,500 sites created to date, we tailor and build each site specifically for a client's individual needs and budget concerns. These extranets also serve as a portal for direct communication with our team. Clients can post requests, provide comments on activities, and review matter and/or portfolio status.

Training Modules. Baker Donelson offers off-the-shelf and customized training modules to facilitate and track training initiatives and help ensure compliance with laws and regulations. Our modules, along with outlines, guides, and other materials, can be easily and widely distributed to the intended participants. For example, our KM team collaborated with our L&E lawyers to create Can We Talk?, an on-demand video series that companies can use to bolster their anti-harassment training for non-managers. Research Resources. With the help of our dedicated research team, we maintain a fully automated online library that cross-references thousands of legal research sites. Our enterprise search system, BakerResearch, efficiently locates legal information from both internal resources and external research providers using one single interface. This allows our lawyers to better serve clients by instantly accessing the latest court rulings, practice specific data, news articles, and legislative information.
