

Robert Divine Comments on K-1 Visa System in CBS News

With the news that the woman suspected of shooting 14 people in San Bernardino, California with her husband was radicalized before she ever filled out her K-1 visa to come to the U.S., questions are being raised about the K-1 visa system.

In this CBS News article, Robert Divine notes that there is always going to be some degree of risk "that any visa applicant harbors unknown intentions to harm people in the U.S."

"The only way to even try to eliminate the risk is to close all borders for all purposes, which makes no more sense than eliminating driving risks by never using a car," Mr. Divine said.
