

Nancy Johnson Comments on Controlling Medicare Costs in Kaiser Health News

Health policy expert Nancy Johnson offers her views to Kaiser Health News on what one change she would make to Medicare to control costs. Ms. Johnson's answer: provide incentives to seniors to participate in prevention and wellness programs. Ms. Johnson notes, "Through this approach, patient-physician conversations will enable patients and their caregivers to gain a better understanding of disease processes and be ready to make more responsible end-of-life decisions."
