Baker Donelson's Alex Koskey Earns Information Privacy Certification

April 19, 2018

Alex Koskey of Baker Donelson has earned a Certified Information Privacy Professional (CIPP/US) credential from the International Association of Privacy Professionals (IAPP).

Originally launched in 2004 as the first professional certification ever offered in information privacy, the CIPP has become the preeminent credential in the field. A CIPP credential means the recipient has gained a foundational understanding of privacy and data protection law and practice, and has knowledge of jurisdictional laws, regulations and enforcement models. Mr. Koskey holds the CIPP/US concentration, which focuses on the U.S. private sector.

An associate in Baker Donelson's Atlanta office and a member of the Firm's Data Protection, Privacy and Cybersecurity Team, Mr. Koskey represents individuals, businesses and financial institutions on a wide range of regulatory and compliance issues, real estate and commercial matters. He advises clients on financial regulatory and compliance issues, and provides counsel regarding federal consumer protection and privacy laws, including the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, Fair Credit Reporting Act and Bank Secrecy Act. He also has significant experience in representing and counseling clients on contract disputes, real estate title litigation, commercial matters, mortgage servicing and financing issues, and real estate transactions.
